Geopolitical analysis

1. Social/cultural/demographic context

Bangladesh ("The Land of Bengal"), officially the People's Republic of Bangladesh, shares land borders with India and Myanmar (Burma). Most of the country is dominated by the fertile Ganges-Brahmaputra delta; the north-western and central parts of the country are formed by the Madhupur and Barind plateaus. Bangladesh is predominantly a rich, fertile plain. Most of the country is less than 12m above sea level, and it is estimated that about 10% of the land would be submerged by a 1m rise in sea level. 17% of the country is covered by forests and 12% by hill systems. Bangladesh is the eighth most populous country in the world, with 98% of the population being Bengali.

2. Political context

The Constitution of Bangladesh establishes a unitary, Westminster-style parliamentary republic with universal suffrage. The Prime Minister is supported by a parliamentary majority (usually the leader of the largest party). Parliamentary elections are held every five years. Bangladeshi politics is dominated by two political parties: the Bangladesh Nationalist Party (BNP), led by Ziaur Rahman's widow, Khaleda Zia, and the Bangladesh Awami League, led by Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's daughter, Sheikh Hasina. Since independence in 1971, there have been regular military coups, the most recent in 2014. The last general elections were held in January 2024, granting a fourth consecutive mandate to the Awami League government led by former Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina. While the elections were largely peaceful, they were boycotted by the opposition, which raised accusations regarding their independence. The last general elections were held in January 2024, granting a fourth consecutive mandate to the Awami League government led by former Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina. While the elections were largely peaceful, they were boycotted by the opposition, which raised accusations regarding their independence. The political landscape shifted dramatically following massive student-led protests that escalated into a political uprising in July and August 2024, resulting in the resignation and ouster of the Awami League government on August 5, 2024. An interim government, led by Dr. Younus and supported by 21 advisors, was formed on August 8, 2024. The tenure of this interim government is limited, and there is no clarity on when new elections will be held to establish a democratically elected government.

Even after the interim government's formation, largely peaceful protests continue, with various groups raising multiple demands. The interim administration has reversed many decisions made by the previous government and replaced officials across all departments, impacting the functionality of key government services, including law enforcement agencies.

Moreover, many individuals—including former ministers, members of parliament, and Awami League functionaries—are being arrested and face multiple lawsuits.

3. Economic context

As of 2023, Bangladesh is estimated to have a PPP (purchasing power parity) adjusted GDP per capita of $8,171 and is classified as a lower middle-income country. Bangladesh met the UN criteria to graduate from the category of Least Developed Countries in February 2021. Macroeconomic policies in recent years have been successful in keeping inflation stable, debt-to-GDP low, and external buffers adequate. Bangladesh experienced GDP growth rates of 7.32% and 7.88% in 2018 and 2019. Due to the impact of COVID19, the country's GDP growth rate was only 3.45% in 2020 but increased to 6.94% in 2021. The main drivers of the country's GDP growth include its exports of ready-made garments, remittances and the domestic agricultural sector.

Bangladesh is a great producer of gas and coal and exports a lot of jute, tea, leather goods, textile, fish and sea food. The pharmaceutical industry meets 97% of domestic demand, and exports to different countries. Shipbuilding has grown rapidly, with exports to Europe.

Summary of HI presence in the country

HI launched its programme in Bangladesh in 1997 to promote the long-term rights and social inclusion of people with disabilities. Bangladesh, Nepal and India have developed Community Approaches to Handicap in Development (CAHD) in partnership with the Centre for Disability in Development (CDD) and the Christoffel Blinden Mission (CBM).

In response to the influx of hundreds of thousands of Rohingyas fleeing neighbouring Myanmar since August 2017, HI is providing assistance to people living in extreme precarity. Our teams deliver rehabilitation care, mental health and psychosocial support, protection and sexual and reproductive health research (SRH) support to thousands of people. HI has also set up a logistics platform with humanitarian aid storage facilities and a fleet of lorries that transport humanitarian aid for HI and other organisations.

HI encourages the inclusion of the most vulnerable by supporting their access to services, such as rehabilitation and inclusive employment, and their participation in society.

The organisation also improves access to education for all children, including children with disabilities, developmental delays and psychological disorders in camps for Rohingya refugees. Our teams train teachers to include children with disabilities in the classroom, organise rehabilitation sessions for children with disabilities to facilitate their access to school and raises community awareness of their right to education.

HI also takes action to ensure that people with disabilities have access to a source of income, giving them financial independence and improving their acceptance by their communities.

HI works with most vulnerable communities, especially persons with disabilities living in disaster prone and environmentally fragile areas to include them in disaster risk reduction plannings and to build their capacities to deal with disasters.
